He came to this city on Saturday, and anneunced at the office of the New York Cab Company, at 323 Fifth avenue, in whose employ he was, that he would resume work yesterday morning. He failed to do so, and cannot be found, and the police have been asked to look for him. It is supposed that he has set sail for Europe again.

Of scarcely less interest to him is the American College here, which President Arthur's timely interference saved from the Leo XIII. were still in possession of his tem-poral domain, there is no doubt but he would generously second the sealous labors of the present rector, Dr. O'Connell, to make the American College in Rome the worthy counter-part of the great National University at Washington. As it is, he can only see to it carefully that this seminary of the American priesthood is in every way a nursery of priestly virtue and Saturday last, June 19, being the Eve of Pentecost, was the great day for ordinations in the Cathedral of Rome, St. John Lateran. Cardinal Parocchi, the Pope's Vicar-General, officiated. He never devolves on another the most laborious duty of conferring orders on the hundreds of candidates sent up for ordination by the religious orders and all the great ecclesiastical schools of Rome.

The ordinations began at an early hour, and lasted all the forenoon and a good way into the afternoon. It was a most imposing sight in the new sanctuary of St. John Lateran, of which I wrote in my last, to see the Cardinal—an apostolic man in every sense of the word-surrounded by that crowd of aspirants to the holy ministry, young men from every clime. The Englishspeaking world was well represented. Here were pupils of the two Irish colleges of St. Isidore and Sant Agata, from the Scotch and Engdore and Sant Agata, from the Scotch and Eng-lish colleges, from the American Coilege, and the Propagands. The Propaganda students are always an object of interest to Catholic and non-Catholic visitors to Rome, Among them you can mark Orientals of every shade and race, and Africans, too, of the purest blood and the darkest complexion. In Rome, in the Catholic Church, color and race are no causes of social exclusion. The aversion, the repulsion, which a dark face inspires in cosmopolitan New York and Puritan Boston, are never feit here by the native born Romans. The African priests or-dained yourly are, everybody knows, sposties whom Rome sends forth to scread the seeds of Gospei truth and Christian civilization in the Leo XIII., accomplished scholar that he is, and zealous for the progress of the very highest intellectual and moral culture, has provided for our American students in Rome, as for those of all nations, gratuitous instruction in the highest literature and the highest science, secular and sacred. But our generosity in American must help Dr. O'Connell to do more. The American College only received canonical institution two years ago. Its library is still exceedingly incomplete, and there is other needful furniture sadly lacking. Above all, these young men should have here in the American College what the present Pope has so generously provided for the young seminarians belonging to the dlocess of Rome—the highest training in the literature and language of their own country.

There ought to be, there must be, chairs of English literature and sacred eloquence founded in the American College in Rome, for the purpose of making these young priests, selected from all parts of our great country, expert, thoroughly expert, in the use of the language and literature of their own land.

It is an incalculable benefit to the young priests sent out on the mission among a people so appraciative of intellectual culture and literary excellence as ours is, to be graceful writers and accompilshed speakers. Hence the necessity of coming to the assistance of this young establishment.

Already Dr. O'Connell has done much, very much, to stimulate the ardor of his students in Leo XIII., accomplished scholar that he is, accomplished speakers. Hence the necessity of coming to the assistance of this young establishment.

Aiready Dr. O'Connell has done much, very much, to stimulate the ardor of his students in this regard as in others.

I shall not venture to make a direct appeal to our Americans. This only must I say: We have succeeded in saving the American College from the officials of the Italian Treasury. Let us now try to make it in every way worthy of our country. The day is past when kings and emperors could found stately institutions of learning in Rome and endow them richly. We have now to depend on the more than royal generosity of our American Catholics, who give even of their very poverty.

By the way, there had been a rumor here in Rome that the Pope this year intended to send the Golden Rose to Miss Mary Gwendolene Caldwell of New York in acknowledgment of her princely munificence to the Catholic University. We Americans, of course, should have been proud of this distinction conferred on an American lady. But the Golden Rose has never been sent save to ladies of royal rank and distinguished for uncommon virtue. This year it goes to the Queen of Spain, a distinction well deserved, and one which will help to bind still more the Spanish nation to Leo XIII. and their ancestral faith.

Conductors Made Advertising Agents.

The diligence with which the conductors on some of the street railroads hawlout the names of cer-tain hotels and business houses and pass by in slience tein notes and Owner noted, puzzles a great many pas-sengers. A conductor explained this by saying: "It's a new way of advertising. If a man puts a sign up in a car not one in a dozen passencers will read it, but when the conductor yells out, The Bong Tung Hote; cri Yuli, Tari & Co., everybody is bound to take motice, and the places grow familiar to them."

MRS. CRAWFORD'S LEGACY.

the Gets it After it had Lain for Months at the Bottom of the Bea.

For several years Mrs. Margaret Craig Crawford has been living in Newark in anticination of receiving some day an inheritance from an aunt in Scotland. Mrs. Crawford is widow who worked in Clark's thread works for many years and nursed an invalid husband. A few weeks after her husband died she was stricken with partial paralysis and was forced to desist from active employment. She opened a small fancy goods store in the basement of 47 Storer street and earned a very precarious livelihood. She was materially assisted at times by the Newark Bureau of Associated Charities. Early last fall Mrs. Crawford learned that her aunt in Scotland had died and bequeathed a portion of the property to her. Mrs. Crawford expected property to her. Mrs. Crawford expected a legacy of at least £1,000, but letters which arrived after her aunt's death propared her for the receipt of a very modest sum. Even a few hundred dollars was a fortune to a woman in her condition, and she eagerly awaited the arrival of the draft. She received several legal papers which she signed and sent back to Scotland. Months passed and ser tectived in word from the lawyers employed in settling the estate. At least she wrots to relatives in Scotland, and her communications were supplemented by letters from Lawyer Francis M. Tichenor of the Burcau of Associated Charities to a lawyer in Paisley. The Scotch lawyer anawered the letter, saying that a large part of the bequest had been absorbed by men who had charge of the estate, and that only a trifle was left. This was in March last, and wooks rolled by before anything further was heard of the matter. In June the sick and impoverished woman wrote to her sister in Paisley, and last week she received a letter saying that a draft for the money had been forwarded by Walter Holmes on March 6.

ceived a letter saying that a draft for the money had been forwarded by Waiter Holmes on March 6.

On Thursday of last week a Newark gentleman who took deep interest in the case, conferred with Superintendent Smith of the Charities Bureau, and suggested that the draft might be at the bottom of the ocean in the mail of the steamer Oregon. A comparison of dates showed that the Oregon sailed from Liverpool on March 6, and the reasonable inference was that the Scotch mail might have been in time for the ill-fated steamer to receive it. With slight hopes of getting any information about the letter, they went to the Post Office and asked if there was any foreign mail for Mrs. Crawford. The clerk at first answered no, and then turning to a recently received let of mail tossed it over, and with an exclamation of surprise threw out a torn and stained package addressed to "Mrs. Margaret Craig or Crawford, 47 Stone street. Newark. NewJersey, U.S. A."

On both ends of the envelope were little pasters bearing this inscription:

This place is a portion of the mail forwarded from genetic number of the mail forwarded from genetic numbers.

On both ends of the envelope were little pasters bearing this inscription:

This piece is a portion of the mail forwarded from Queenstown, Ireland, per steamer Oregon, on March 7, and damazed by the sinking of the vessel off Fire Island on March 14. Recovered from the wreck July 1-4.

N.Y. P. O. Phins. Hissay G. Fransos, Postinaster.

This was one of the lotters contained in the 181 bags sent to the Post Office early last week by the Merritt Wrecking Company, and it contained Mrs. Crawford's long expected legacy, with a financial statement from Mr. Holmes, who settled the estate. She received the letter on Friday morning, and during the day the draft on the Bank of England was cashed for her by a Newark bank.

On the back of the letter was a reversed copy of the address of another missive, and on holding it to a mirror the name of Mr. Charles Latimer, 64 Euclid avenue, Cleveland Ohio, U. S. A., was plainly discernible. A telegram was sent to Mr. Latimer, and he answered an inquiry by saying that he received a letter from the wreek addressed to him by Plazzi Smyth, Astronomer Royal, of Scotland.

He was an object of very special interest to the crowd of English-brated his first mass in St. Peter's on Sunday morning. urday's order Mr. Morrison's surplus resolution will be called up on Tuesday. The action of the Appropriations Committee on the amendments made by the Senate to the legislative bill is awaiting consideration by the House, and the subject is likely to be taken up about the middle of the week. The bill for the new naval establishment will be called up for action, if opportunity affords, toward the end of the week. If there should remain a few hours after the disposal of the measures above mentloned, several committees stand ready to call up bills for which special orders have been made, including the Paeific Raiir-ad Funding bill, the Inter-State Commerco bill, and the Land Grant Ferfeiture bill.
The River and Harbor bill remains, as at the beginning of last week, the unfinished business of the Senate. Senator McMillan, who has it in charge, expresses a hope that it will be passed to-morrow, but no attempt will be made to cut short the debate upon it. He admits the possibility that the Mississippi River feature inoryet reached) may keep the measure before the Senate two or three days longer.
There is an understanding that the Navai Appropriation bill and the Oleomargarine bill shall follow the River and Harbor bill, and these are likely to consume the week. The Sundry Civil bill will probably be reported to the Senate on Monday or Tuesday, but will hardly be called up until next week.

"unobjected" cases and nearly a dozen which are reported adversely. It is proposed to devote an early day to the latter, but the day has
